fit that is quite astonishing. Bad arrangement of tenants is often due to one of two causes, lack of an ideal and lack of a comprehensive plan, dark rooms and undesirable court spaces which must be filled with anyone who is willing

Influence of Population.

This does not mean that individuals of all nationalities and all colors and of all conditions of life are of equal value to a community. It means that the average value of human beings to the real estate owners as a whole is, approximately, $1,000 for each individual.

"The amount that each person contributes to the real estate values of a town by moving inside the corporate limits is undoubtedly largely determined by the individual's ability to bring money into the community and by his disposition to spend this money in the community.

"The best way to appreciate the amount of human value that attaches to land is to compare the value of an acre where people do not live with the value of an acre at the center of some lively city or town. The way to appreciate the value contributed to land by different groups of people is to imagine the inhabitants of the silk stocking ward trading locations with the inhabitants of the slugs ward. Or, imagine that all families with incomes of from $300 to $1,000 per year trade residences with families who have incomes ranging from $3,000 to $10,000 per

Some Managers' Mistakes.

If you should take the trouble to approach office building tenants still closer, you will find in many buildings that apparently the only consideration that has been taken into account is wether the applicant for office space has white or black skin.

"Nationality, residence, business tastes and social connections in many buildings seem to be wholly ignored in determining the qualification of prospective ten-

"If the inhabitants of the ordinary office building were brought together in a new residence subdivision in the same relative position that they occupy in the offine building, it is safe to venture the assertion that about one-half would soon move away rather than endure such

"Quality is often ignored for quantity that a 100 per cent rented record may be realized. This lowering of a standard ultimately results in a decrease in revenue. When the good reputation of an office building is once sacrificed through thoughtlessness or stupidity or lack of experience or to satisfy personal ambition or corporate greed, it can never be fully regained.

Building Should Be Full. "Every office building should be filled, but the best results will be realized in the long run if each building houses the kind

"Only first-class people should be in first-class buildings; and only secondclass people should be in second-class buildings; and third-class people should be in third-class buildings. "If people of different classes are mixed, one class is pulled up and another class pulled down by the mixture and the building becomes a mongrel instead of a thoroughbred. The same principle that works in establishing a residence community will work in establishing a business community. "In the proportion that intelligent, cultured, prosperous, well-behaved people add values to land in a residence section, the same kind of people will add values to an office building by reason of their quality and larger purchasing power. "It is common belief that a full office building is a success. It will be found, however, that the greatest profit in operating office buildings will be realised through the bringing together under one roof in happy, harmonious relation a group of uniformity high-grade people and then serving this group so well that every individual would shudder at the thought of moving.

"The profit from office buildings comes from continuous normal rents, low expenses due to the stability and contentment of tenants and from increased land value that universally results where good quality people establish themselves.
